One of these groups came to my and several other journalists aid when we were tear gassed yesterday. I'm incredibly thankful for them. Thanks too @scottphoto. Amid continued protests 'sick and tired' group of friends teams up to provide medical help strib.mn/3eEjx3B

This is completely insane. I was with Carolyn last night when we got tear gassed. She's easily one of the most experienced and professional people in the business having covered hotspots all over the world. Absolutely appalling.

Standoff near Lake and Nicollet. Protesters pile signs as makeshift barricades. Just hit by rubber bullet.

Regarding police behavior last night, I was twice ordered at gunpoint by Minneapolis police to hit the ground, warned that if I moved "an inch" I'd be shot. This after being teargassed and hit in groin area by rubber bullet. Waiving a Star Tribune press badge made no difference.

Local CBS station @WCCO just showed footage of veteran photographer Tom Aviles being arrested. He identifies himself on the video.

Here's my video of a @WCCO videographer being arrested here in Minneapolis tonight, after IDing himself. He is yelling for his producer.

The @MnDPS_MSP has arrested @wcco photojournalist Tom Aviles, who clearly identified himself a day after arresting a @CNN crew live on the air. @wccophotogs

After more than two hours in custody he has been released, despite numerous earlier assurances from authorities he was already out. Here is the video of Tom being hit by a non-lethal round.

And I got hit in the chest by a rubber bullet from police. Covered me in dust that's been making me cough for a half hour. I'm home now.

Police had weapons trained on a group of us. We held up our press passes. One kept his rifle on us while the others continued to fire foam baton rounds.

Police just raided the gas station we were sheltering at. After shouting press multiple times and raising my press card in the air, I was thrown to the ground. Then another cop came up and peppered sprayed me in the face while I was being held down.
